ETO also tours with a brand new opera by Kate Pearson for 4-7 year olds, 'The Starry Welkin', and an opera for children with profound learning difficulties and special needs, 'A Midnight Moon'. Both are set in the magical forest of 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' and follow the characters from different stories in the opera as they struggle through the strangest of moonlit nights.

Season of Happy Endings

After our really ambitious – and, as it happened, really successful – touring festival of Handel opera, I thought that we should put together a season of operas with certainly happy endings that will send you out of the theatre on a high. These very different operas – all of them describing the events of one day – find comedy in a stifling manor in Seville, an enchanted forest, and a bachelor's dusty quarters. Of course, comedy does not mean that there are not obstacles, or serious moments – but it does mean that there is a splendid resolution, expressed in song. Also, I wanted to put together operas that we can do especially well. In recent seasons we have been nominated for national arts awards for our productions of operas by Mozart, Donizetti and Britten – so this should be a kind of 'heart of ETO' tour, in which our artists also present short operas for children, and for people with special needs. The season is already selling well, so please book early, and try them all!

JAMES CONWAY,
GENERAL DIRECTOR

The Marriage of Figaro

WA Mozart

An energetic, period costume production (faithful to the original!) of one of the world's most popular operas.

Based on Beaumarchais' controversial play, Mozart's opera (sung in English) traces the intrigues of one day at the house of Count Almaviva. Figaro (Robert Davies) is to marry Susanna (here played by Eliana Praetorian and Claire Ormshaw), but he must overcome every obstacle put in his way by the Count and his cronies before he can be united finally with his bride.

James Conway's production, set in steamy Seville, showcases exciting young singers, including Nicholas Lester and Laura Mitchell as Count and Countess.

Don Pasquale

Gaetano Donizetti

This is a comedy with zest, cream, and an Italian accent – think zabaglione! – in a new English language production by William Oldroyd and Agnes Treplin, with Dominic Wheeler conducting.

The Philadelphia Orchestra Association Archives

Keel Watson plays Don Pasquale, a stubborn, competitive, old bachelor – and here a tyrant opera conductor – who wants to find himself a young wife. He seems set to steal from his nephew a beautiful, and apparently submissive bride – but his clumsy wooing turns to woe when she reveals her own mind.

Nicholas Sharratt, Mary O'Sullivan and Owen Gilhooley share Donizetti's finest bel canto song-writing in this wonderful score, much loved and now not so often performed – despite its "succès fou" at its premiere in Paris in 1843, and its brilliant history over 100 years, spreading the warm sun of Italy over Europe and the Americas.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

Benjamin Britten

ETO's hugely successful 2004 production of the Britten/Shakespeare masterpiece returns. In a fairy-haunted wood, lovers' knots are tangled, and strange dreams create monstrous romances. Only in a hilarious play performed by working men are all the opera's tensions and enchantments eased. Visually spectacular, Joanna Parker's design (complete with Jacobean costumes) and James Conway's production celebrates the best of English music and theatre. Michael Rosewell conducts Britten's eerie, highly theatrical score. Jonathan Peter Kenny, Andrew Slater and David Gooderson (best known as the original Dr Who Davros) reprise the roles of Oberon, Bottom and Puck.

***** "Hike miles to see this... ETO's staging of Britten's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' is wonderful beyond words. A corker of a show from a tip-top team" THE INDEPENDENT
